Introduction

2012 continued to challenge many charities as they faced reductions in funding by local authorities enforced by the economic climate. The work of the Summerfield Trust proved to be of particular value in helping to maintain the quality of life in Gloucestershire and the trustees continue to actively search for ways to grow our effectiveness by attracting new investments by way of donations and legacies.

Our investments continued to improve during the year, under management by Smith & Williamson, ending the year comfortably above £9.3m. This bodes well for the immediate and medium term future as the Trust seeks to continue its significant impact across the full scope of its grant-making categories and, if possible, maintain the value of the portfolio for the longer term.

During 2012 the Summerfield Trust donated £ 413,142 to a wide variety of good causes. We continue to encourage a diverse range of applicants and we are keen to be involved in projects, both large and small, that are imaginative and to which we can make a significant contribution.

We made a total of 86 grants as set out in this report. Many of these grants were to support those who are having a difficult time in the current economic climate. These include donations to Gloucester City Church Projects to help establish food banks and the Citizens Advice Bureau needing to provide more benefits advice. We are proud of our support to organisations such as the Global Dimension Trust and the Severn Wye Energy Agency for supporting environmental education. In the arts, we were pleased to help Gloucestershire Dance establish a collaboration with the Roses Theatre in Tewkesbury in order to revitalise dance practise in the county.

The Summerfield lecture was given by Fiona Reynolds, retiring CEO of the National Trust focussing on the extraordinary achievements of Octavia Hill, one of the founders of the Trust, this proved to be an exceptional presentation in a successful Literature Festival.

We awarded the second tranche of the promised grant to the Cheltenham Art Gallery & Museum of £375,000. It is making good progress with the building work and is due to re-open in October 2013.

We are an experienced and well-organized grant-making charity, and we are keen to encourage anyone who wishes to donate or leave money to charity to consider using the Summerfield Trust as a suitable method for doing this. Our Trustees are not remunerated for the time and expertise which they give to managing the Trust.

It is the policy of the Trust for trustees to retire at the end of a ten year term and this February we bid farewell to both Jamila Gavin and Jan Urban-Smith.

Continued/....

Jamila is well known far beyond Gloucestershire as the writer of many books, particularly for young people, including Coram Boy, which was dramatised for the National Theatre. Her knowledge of the arts scene across the county has been of enormous value to the Trust when considering applications from that sector. Jamila is deeply committed to the well-being of the county and would have gladly approved every application if funds had been unlimited.

Jan brought a wealth of experience to the Trust from a career in education. Through that expertise and a wider passion to help the disadvantaged, the Trust has been enabled to identify crucial areas for making grants that have had a far reaching impact on local communities.

Their fellow trustees are immensely grateful for the wisdom, expertise and good humour that Jamila and Jan have contributed to the work of SCT. Personally, I now find myself as the longest serving trustee. The policy of retirement has held us in good stead with Anthony and James being incredibly committed to doing everything possible to honour the legacy of Ron Summerfield and work of previous trustees.

We extend a very warm welcome to two new trustees, Vanessa Arbuthnot and Kate Hicks Beach. Vanessa lives near Cirencester. Having gained a degree in nursing and SRN she became an intensive care nurse. After marrying she retrained with a PGCE to become a primary school teacher in London. After having children, she attended art school to study surface print, which led to her starting her own fabric mail order company in 2000. In 2012 she created an artist residency in her house; she and her students take art classes out to vulnerable groups in the community.

Kate has worked for twenty years as a professional singer, teacher and choir leader and works with children each summer running music and drama camps in Gloucestershire. Kate has served on the Music Advisory Group to the Cheltenham Music Festival. She is a Trustee of Home-Start Cotswolds, and is on the Council of the Gloucestershire Historic Churches Trust organizing their biennial concerts. She also works part time at Farmor's School in Fairford. She brings a flair for identifying where best to make investments that will bring best value to the Trust and the recipients. The trustees look forward to the debating, the challenges and opportunities that lie ahead, working with the outstanding administrative team and advisers.
